I fully support the settlement. I think it gives the small amount of justice that was needed and still allows Microsoft to develop great software.

Microsoft has been bogged down now for a couple years working on this lawsuit that never should have happened anyway. Microsoft is a good company and is providing great solutions for many customers. The fact that their product is better and more people use it should not be case for litigation.

It is time for the Government and Microsoft to be done with this, as there are more important things in the world to accomplish right now, like supporting the war on terrorism.
